WARNINGS: It is a criminal offence to buy, sell or otherwise acquire or dispose of Securities in the Company or any other listed company if you have knowledge which gives you an advantage over other investors in the share market. This offence is called “Insider Trading”. You can be sent to jail or fined for Insider Trading. This Policy endeavours to ensure that:

- you avoid Insider Trading liability in relation to the Company and other companies; and
- the Company avoids the reputational damage that could occur as a result.

A breach of this Policy is a serious matter and is likely to result in immediate termination of your employment/engagement.

POLICY BACKGROUND - INSIDER TRADING

What is Insider Trading?

The main kind of Insider Trading

In summary “Insider Trading” (as it applies to the Company) means buying or selling Securities in the Company or being issued with or Exercising the Company’s convertible Securities when you have Inside Information.

What is Inside Information?

“Inside Information” (as it relates to the Company) means information which:

- (a) is not generally available to stock market (ASX) investors; and
- (b) a reasonable person would expect it to have a material effect on the price of the Company’s Securities if it was generally available.

Generally available information means any information which:

- (i) is readily observable;
- (ii) has been made known in a manner which is likely to bring it to the attention of stock market investors and a reasonable period for that information to be disseminated has elapsed; or
- (iii) consists of deductions, conclusions or inferences made or drawn from information falling under either (i) or (ii) above.

Information is considered to have a material effect on the price or value of the Company’s Securities if a reasonable person would expect it to influence persons who commonly invest in Securities in deciding whether or not to subscribe for, buy or sell the Company’s Securities. This type of information is commonly referred to as “price sensitive information”.

What else is “Insider Trading”?

The law against Insider Trading also prohibits:

- (a) you encouraging another person to buy or sell the Company’s Securities if you have Inside Information; and
- (b) you telling Inside Information to another person where you should reasonably know that they are likely to buy or sell the Company’s Securities or persuade another person to do so.

When does information stop being Inside Information?

After Inside Information has been disclosed to ASX it is still Inside Information until investors have had a reasonable time to consider it. This Policy helps ensure that trading in the Company's Securities does not occur until that time has passed.

Inside Information Examples - Company

The following are examples of Inside Information relating to the Company:

- (a) You are aware that the Company is lodging a claim for a tenement over ground which has potential to contain a material exploration result.
- (b) You know that a drilling programme is likely to lead to a material exploration result.
- (c) The Company is proposing to buy or sell a material mineral project or investment.
- (d) Another company makes a confidential approach to the Company proposing a take-over or merger.
- (e) The Company is planning a fund raising or other material capital management initiative (such as a material distribution of dividends or capital or a share buy-back).
- (f) The threat of material litigation against the Company.
- (g) You are aware of a civil disturbance in a region where the Company's project is located, before the information becomes generally known.

Inside Information Examples – Other Companies

The following are examples of Inside Information that you may have relating to a listed company other than the Company:

- (a) The Company is considering a major transaction with another listed company - the fact that the transaction will, or may, occur may have a material effect on the price or value of the shares in that other company.
- (b) You become aware, through a close relationship with an executive of another listed company, unrelated to the Company, that it is considering entering into a major transaction - similarly, the potential for that transaction to occur may materially affect the price or value of that other company's shares.

Reputational Damage

Insider Trading by the Company personnel may damage the Company's reputation. The Company's reputation may also be damaged if a reasonable person may suspect that Insider Trading has occurred, even if it has not occurred.

Example: an employee who was not aware that the Company was about to announce a drilling result buys the Company's Securities shortly before the announcement. A reasonable person may suspect that the employee was aware of the subject of the announcement before it was made.

Enforcement of Insider Trading Laws

The ASX and Government regulators take an active interest in whether the Company and its personnel are complying with the law on Insider Trading and this Policy. Regulators may investigate share transactions which occur before significant ASX announcements to find out whether the buyer or seller acted on Inside Information.

If consent is granted by the Trading Officer, you must complete the proposed financing transaction within 14 days of receiving such consent, or such earlier or later time as determined by the Trading Officer based on the circumstances of your request.

7 RELATIONS WITH SECURITY ANALYSTS, INSTITUTIONS AND THE MEDIA

- 7.1 In the course of their duties, Personnel may deal with external parties like security analysts, stock-brokers, institutional investors and the media. You must not disclose Inside Information to any external person without permission.

- 8.2 A Severe Financial Hardship or Exceptional Circumstances determination can only be made by examining all of the facts and if necessary obtaining independent verification of the facts from banks, accountants or legal advisers.
- 8.3 You may be in Severe Financial Hardship if you have a pressing financial commitment that cannot be satisfied otherwise than by selling the proposed Securities.
- 8.4 There may be Exceptional Circumstances if you are required by a court order, or there are court enforceable undertakings, including, in a bona fide family settlement, to transfer or sell the proposed Securities or there is some other overriding legal or regulatory requirement for you to do so
- 8.5 Your tax liability would not normally constitute a Severe Financial Hardship unless you have no other means of satisfying the liability. A tax liability relating to Securities granted to you (under a securities incentive plan (or equivalent scheme) or otherwise at the discretion of the Board) would also not normally constitute Severe Financial Hardship or otherwise be considered an Exceptional Circumstance.
- 8.6 In recognition of the case that Exceptional Circumstances, by their nature, cannot always be specified in advance, it is envisaged that there may be other circumstances, which have not been identified in the Policy, that may be deemed exceptional by the Trading Officer.
- 8.7 You, in seeking clearance to Trade, must satisfy the Trading Officer that you are in Severe Financial Hardship or that your circumstances are otherwise exceptional (that is, there are Exceptional Circumstances) and that the proposed sale or disposal of the relevant Securities is the only reasonable course of action available. Your application must be made in writing stating all of the facts and be accompanied by copies of relevant supporting documentation and contact details of your accountant, bank or legal advisor (where applicable).
